Seeking

*TO BROADEN THEIR HORIZONS
THROUGH STUDY*

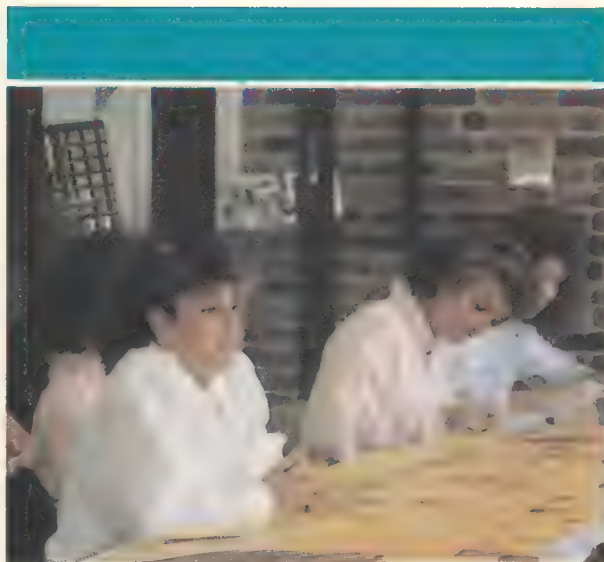

This has been a year of many changes for Juniata College, from the alcohol policy to the initiation of new student groups like Amnesty International and the Writers' Group to women being "on top" in Sherwood. The Human Concerns Committee began a campaign to change the mascot, and we all wondered if the cost of tuition would be surpassed by the parking fines.

But if Juniata has changed a lot in one year, it's changed even more in thirty. From the 1959 issue of The Scout (the equivalent of the Pathfinder now), here are some of Juniata's rules and regulations: for freshmen we have, "all freshmen shall follow the customary practice of greeting fellow students with a friendly 'hello'," (so that's where it came from) or there's "no student may miss more than six chapel services, held three times per week, during a semester unless excused." Also, for anyone who has ever lived in Lesher, "men are not allowed in the women's dormitories at any time except by special permission, which may be obtained from the dean of women." And, for those who think our new alcohol policy is too stringent, "of course, it is understood that college women at Juniata never drink. The use of alcoholic beverages is prohibited."

Perhaps after all of the changes Juniata has undergone in the past thirty years, the changes of this past year don't seem quite so significant. And, of course, there are some things at Juniata that will always remain the same. The obligatory Juniata "Hi," for example, the success of the women's volleyball team, and Mountain Day never being when you thought it would be; none of these things seem ready to change. That, I suppose, is one of Juniata's strengths, improving and progressing without losing tradition and heritage.

Academics

*E*very college in the nation, even the world, can boast being founded on one principle — the pursuit of excellence in education. Juniata College is no different in that respect. We can, however, boast that we have attained this excellence, many years ago in fact. But we did not stop there. We have gone one step further, to the point where we develop this excellence and pursue even more.

Our academic programs provide students with the basics, the foundation, for superiority. We also strive to fine-tune this knowledge with experience. In providing both a sound education in the classroom and an environment in which further research can develop each student individually.

Supplying students with a liberal arts education helps them obtain the subtle difference that will aid them later in life.

We don't settle for average, not even better. The subtle difference is that we expect — and receive — the best.

Biology

With biology as a focus, students may pursue major programs in pre-professional educations (pre-medical, pre-dental, pre-veterinary, etc.), environmental biology, pre-forestry, aquatic or marine biology, molecular or cellular biology, physiology, botany, medical technology and other allied health areas.

In direct support of the biology program, Juniata maintains affiliations with biology and allied health departments at several other institutions. Notable among these are the 2+2 B.S. programs in radiologic technology, nursing, medical technology, dental hygiene, cytotechnology, physical therapy and occupational therapy with the College of Allied Health Sciences of Thomas Jefferson University and the 3-2 Forestry Program with Duke University.

Chemistry

The department offers thorough training in modern theoretical and experimental chemistry and enjoys a long-standing reputation for excellence in undergraduate training of professional chemists. Since 1936 the department has been listed among the college chemistry departments whose programs and facilities meet the demanding criteria established by the American Chemical Society. Continued service in this tradition is one of the goals of the departmental faculty members. The great demand for chemists who can help solve critical energy and environmental and biomedical problems makes this goal increasingly timely.

The chemistry curriculum is unusual in that a separate sequence of laboratory courses is offered in parallel to the lecture courses. Research opportunities are available in organic, inorganic, physical, polymer, and biochemistry, as well as certain applied areas, including fuel resources and computer applications to chemistry.

Political Science

The department maintains a professional program for its students and is integrally related with the other social sciences. The course offerings compliment interests in sciences, the humanities and the general liberal arts.

The department provides both a practical and theoretical orientation for students, preparing them for graduate school, law school, governmental services or public administration. Internships are available which allow students to relate theoretical knowledge directly to practical skills. The Washington Semester and the foreign study programs also promote this intellectual growth. These opportunities enable students to blend their interests in political science with their concern for post-collegiate careers.

The study of politics emphasizes both American and cross-national political experiences. The curriculum is organized around these four basic dimensions: (1)

American Government, (2) Public Administration, (3) International and Comparative Politics and (4) Law. In addition, introductory course, special topics courses, and research seminars broaden the offerings.

History

The department offers a core of survey political history courses, and it supplements this base with other studies emphasizing the socio-economic and cultural aspects of the past. With particular strength in American and European studies, the department is designed to provide sound preparation for a wide variety of professional interests, including those of historian, teacher and lawyer as well as those of business and government.

In addition to traditional survey courses, the department offers selected in-depth studies. Interdisciplinary courses, such as Urban Studies offering help to illustrate interrelationships among history and the social sciences. Other specialized interests may be pursued in American Studies, Classical and Medieval Studies, Russian Area Studies, Non-Western Studies, or Peace and Conflict Studies. Off-campus involvement is available through Washington Semester, Urban Semester and Junior Year Abroad programs. Students are encouraged to explore areas of interest not covered by regular courses through independent studies and tutorials. Baxter, Craig, Professor of Politics and History (1981). B.S., A.M., Ph.D., University of Pennsylvania, 1951, 1954, 1967.

Mathematics

Offerings within the department are sufficiently varied to enable students to select computer science or mathematics programs tailored to individual interests and needs. Many students choose a joint program in computer science and mathematics. Others combine computer science or mathematics with another area of interest such as business, chemistry or physics. Internships are available, particularly in computer-related areas.

Business

Students interested in accounting, business and economics soon discover that a variety of topics ranging from quantitative analysis to the complexities of personal interaction are relevant to managing a business firm. The department requires a curriculum which emphasizes decision-making, technical, human and information

The department has established a number of requirements for students planning a program of Emphasis in one or more of these areas. This assures the development of a broad base of useful skills. Collectively these requirements give each student opportunity and flexibility in acquiring decision, technical, human and information skills appropriate to the student's

Psychology

The department's purpose is to provide exposure to the content, methodology and theoretical developments associated with the "study of behavior." The department is oriented toward the empirical, scientific study of both human and nonhuman organisms. The introductory psychology course, prerequisite to all other departmental offerings, attempts to give an overview of the many different areas of psychology. Courses in psychology are intended both for students desiring a general background and for those committed to a deeper understanding and considering graduate work in the area. The offerings deal with behavior at all levels of analysis, from the smallest units of psychology (physiological psychology) to the largest units (social psychology).

Education

The primary goal of the department is to serve as continuous contributor to the liberal education of Juniata students. The department's primary function is developing and promoting the study of education as a humanistic academic discipline. This involves several broad conceptual areas including the purposes and structures of American educational institutions, the philosophy of American education, development of curriculum and instructional techniques, and human social and psychological development.

Physics

Physics is that branch of natural philosophy involved with studies of the fundamental relationships among such quantities as time, space, energy and matter. These relationships are fundamental to an understanding of the other, newer, natural sciences such as biology and chemistry. One of the goals of the department, therefore, is to provide students with insight into the reasoning employed in the physical sciences. Thus the core courses of the department are rigorous in their logical and mathematical development.

The department administers joint 3-2 programs in engineering sciences with Columbia University, Georgia Institute of Technology, The Pennsylvania State University, Clarkson University and Washington University in St. Louis.

Geology

Our industrialized, energy-consuming, "high tech" society needs vast quantities of raw materials from the earth's crust. Although petroleum production fluctuates between worldwide shortage and temporary glut, ever-increasing demands are depleting the finite supply of this and other non-renewable mineral resources. The increasingly challenging role of the geologist, geophysicist, or geochemist is to discover new supplies of raw materials, vital to the maintenance of our standard of living. Environmental imbalances and natural hazards also underscore the need for improved understanding of our physical environment and humanity's relationship to it. Recognizing these needs, the department offers a number of elementary courses which investigate earth resources, the history of our planet, the processes acting on it and the role of earth sciences in modern society. More advanced courses prepare students for graduate study, earth and space science teaching certification or careers in geology and related fields. Fundamental principles, new developments and ideas, and methods of field and laboratory research are integral parts of the curriculum.

In order to understand geologic processes and products, the study of geology is dependent on other scientific fields, including mathematics, computer science, biology, chemistry, and physics. Given this dependency and the many applications of geological knowledge in modern society, students may choose a broad-based general program in geology or an individualized academic program designed to suit a more specialized goal such as geochemistry, geophysics or environmental science.

Philosophy

The department seeks to engage students in those kinds of careful and critical thinking which relate to the total life experience: logic, ethics, aesthetics, methods of knowing and levels of being. Hence, in addition to fairly standard introductory courses, the department develops offerings of special interest to students in such diverse areas as biology, psychology, economics and business, education and mathematics.

Music

Department offerings enable students to learn both the historical development and the aesthetic principles of music and to develop performance strength. The music department maintains offices in Swigart Hall, which also contains classrooms, practice rooms, a lounge, and a music library. Large instrumental, choral, and theatrical productions are staged in Oller Auditorium, a 900-seat concert hall. This auditorium contains a manual electropneumatic Moller Pipe Organ of 35 ranks of pipes.

Members of the Class of 1989
Juniata College
Huntingdon, PA 16652

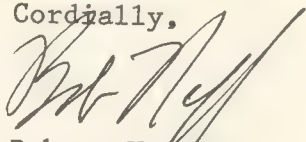

Dear Class of 1989:

No class has made more adjustments in the course of their four years than the Class of '89. Changes in academic and social life brought stress. Life patterns shifted and the college you thought you knew changed beneath your feet. You even had to adjust to a new president.

What have you gained? You have, in the words of the Commencement speaker, an intangible asset that will be worth more to you than anything you ever will own. You have conquered adversity and celebrated in style. You are a class well prepared for life. The changes you encountered at Juniata will be part of the social, economic and intellectual landscape. The challenges will be great but you will be equal to the task!

I wish you all the best in your careers and in your relationships. May good fortune brighten your path and wisdom guide your decisions. When you return to campus, you will always be welcomed home.

Cordially,

Robert W. Neff

Special Events

*“T*omorrow's Mountain Day!” Annoying, joyful voices penetrate my closed door as do the sounds of people running through the hall. I am trying to study, knowing that no matter how reliable the source, these rumors have a way of being, well, just rumors. But the thought that Mountain Day might be tomorrow reminds me again of how glad I am that I am at Juniata, where the entire student body and faculty has the opportunity to blow off classes for a day and play instead.

Special events like Mountain Day help give Juniata its unique atmosphere of warmth. Activities like the Artist Series productions, student-performed plays and the Storming of the Arch each present entertainment for the college community, and annual events like Parents' Weekend, Homecoming, Madrigal Dinner, and All Class Night provide the strong sense of community present at Juniata. Take All Class Night: each class takes a turn making fun of the school, faculty, and staff, and a group of faculty and staff members present an award to the class that does it the best. This could never happen if not for that sense of community, and yet it helps to provide it as well.

Juniata is a fun, friendly place. Many of the special events presented at Juniata would be impossible if it weren't, yet Juniata is made fun and friendly by these same special events. We are fortunate for the number and variety of special events that Juniata provides. They will undoubtedly be tied to many fond memories of Juniata in years to come.

Storming

Juniata's one breach of the "no hazing of freshmen" rule in the Pathfinder occurred once again this year. The storming this year was a noble attempt, but as usual no freshman got close to the stairs, let alone the arch. As usual, the people who had the most fun were the students, standing just out of throwing range, who watched the battle of the classes. And, as usual, everybody avoided the lawn outside Cloister for several days.

Homecoming

Homecoming was pretty lame as usual. I stayed in my room most of the time. How about you? But seriously.

Homecoming 1988 was great indeed. From the lip-syncs, coffeehouse, and the skits to the debut of the roadrace, the campus was charged with school spirit. The parade, even if the floats were "floatless" lived up to the "That's Entertainment" theme. And Stephanie Lantz was a charming Homecoming Queen.

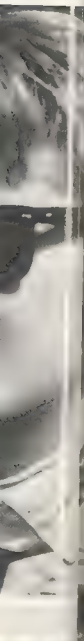

Mountain Day

After rumors of no Mountain Day at all and about three false starts, Mountain Day finally came to Juniata, and it was all that a typical blow-off day ought to be. Great food (including three different varieties of chicken), some heavy duty volleyball, football games, and a tug of war contest in a snow flurry. Well, maybe things weren't typical.

Parents Weekend

Parents' Weekend was a positive experience. The breakfast on Sunday morning was lovely as was the ballet. The CMB-sponsored worship service on Sunday morning was touching, especially the letters read by senior Mariann Blatchley and her parents, and freshman Lance Marshall and his mother. Andy Murray gave a great coffeehouse, and Juniata succeeded in presenting a wholesome image for three days.

Halloween

We should have outgrown it long ago, but there's something about pretending to be what we aren't that is still fun. There were the traditional draculas, witches and ghosts, as well as the "girls" for Sherwood Forest, all the President's Men, and Mickey Mouse. And, of course, the annual pumpkin-carving contest in Baker produced great masterpieces.

Christmas at JC

The line started around 5:30. It was cold and rainy and I was behind in my reading for short story with a test the next day, but I took my shift just the same, like plenty of other people in front of me and behind me. What is it about Madrigal that causes us to do what students of the 60's would only do to (you've heard it before) get tickets to a rock concert or protest an unfair campus policy?

Who know's? Maybe it has something to do with being served by the prof who ruined your GPA, or singing with almost the entire campus. Whatever it is, Madrigal was a great success this year, and it will probably be one of our best memories of Juniata.

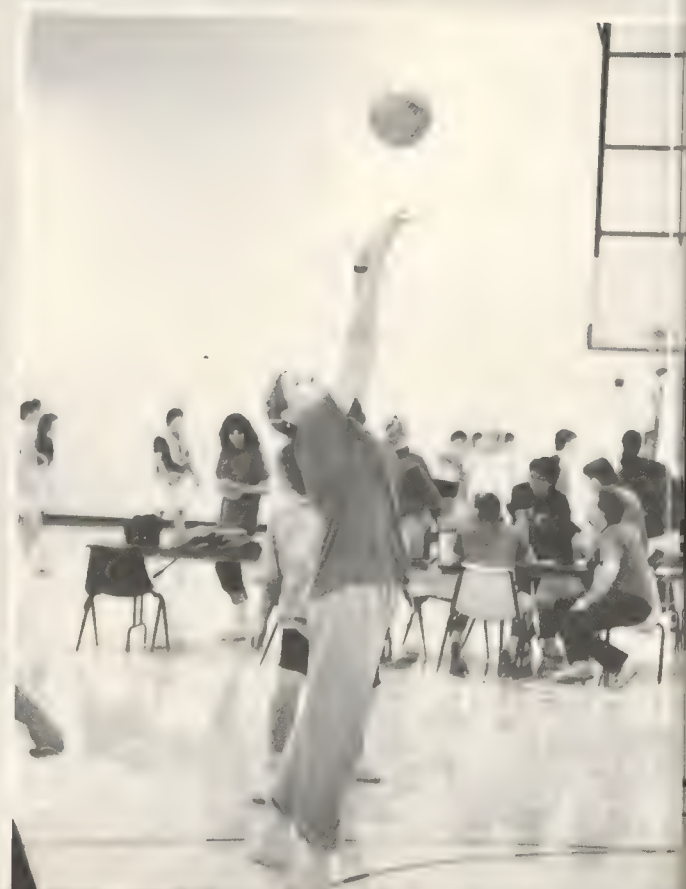

Sheet V-Ball

Say goodbye to cold, wet jello and hello to clean, white bed sheets. Bed sheets hanging where volleyball nets ought to be. The first year of Sheet Volleyball leaves little room for improvement, except maybe in the talent of some of the teams. But heck, the point wasn't so much to win as to have fun and earn some money for the United Way. All who participated did a great job. Don't be surprised if, after running into an opponent ten years from now, you are asked, "Hey, remember when there was just a sheet between us?"

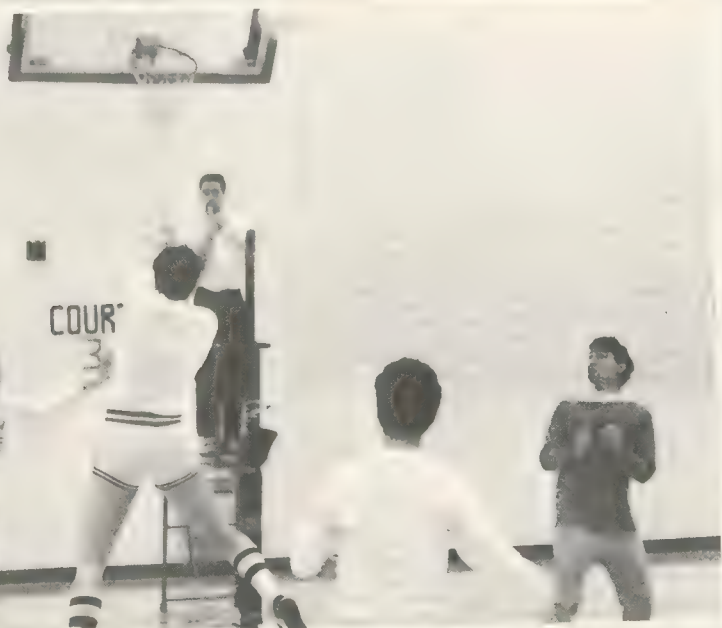

Special Olympics

As President Neff said at the beginning of Special Olympics this year, Juniata is known for volleyball, so it's appropriate that we hosted the Special Olympics volleyball tournament. It was a program that nearly 300 took advantage of and that nearly 100 students assisted with. Some of the games were very close, but at the end, everyone felt like a winner.

HOME

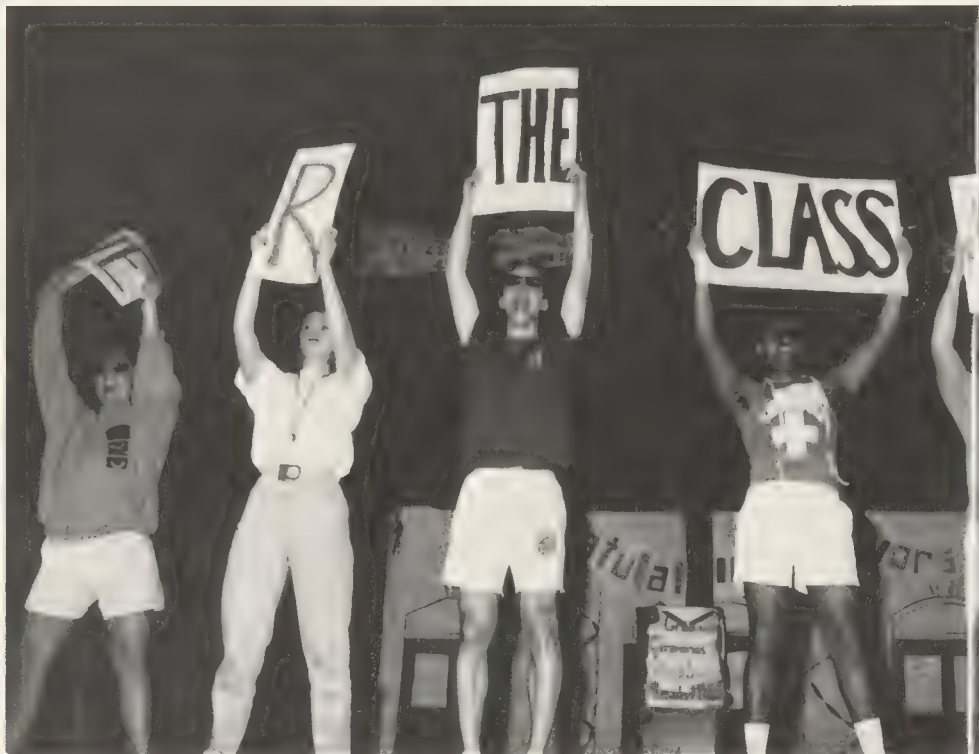

All Class Night

"Movies of the Eighties" including Raiders of the Lost Ark, Dirty Dancing, Good Morning Viet Nam, and Back to the Future, were transformed into digs at everything about Juniata, from Mountain Day to sitting out for Madrigal tickets to Dr. Jay to Raft Reggatta — or Juniata's lack thereof. Perhaps not everything went as smoothly as past years — the sophomores and seniors were both guilty for breaking the ACN committee rules; however, neither were docked any points for it would not change the outcome. The seniors were hilarious and the sophomores, well, the sophomores tried. The freshmen came in second and the junior's Dirty Dancing came in first.

Presidential Ball

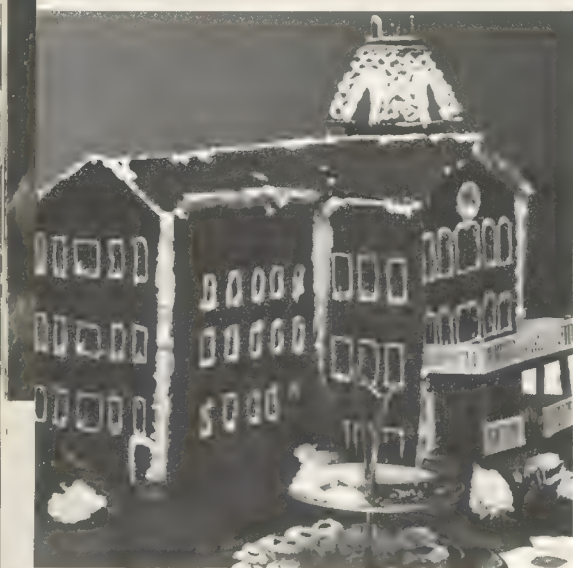

Glittering marque lights, a mural of the Manhattan skyline, great food and a live band — the third annual Presidential Ball was not a commonplace event. Lava-spewing volcanos and T.V. sets showing scenes from various Broadway — musicals — turned — movies livened up the refreshment tables and Amy Ludwig's mural did the same for the walls. Of course, the dance floor was alive without any supplements at all.

DOROTHY NEFF & ROBERT NEFF

Spring Fest

In spite of the sceptics who thought the new alcohol policy would kill it, Spring Fest was as successful as ever this year. With all of the tie-dyes t-shirts on North Lawn, we could almost believe that it was the "Summer of '69." Mud volleyball, fun in the sun, death-defying jumps onto the waterslide, and quality music from Screaming Ducks, Five Play, and Crazy Days — oh, that was the life. Too bad we all had classes the next day. Maybe next year the theme will be Woodstock — those days of peace and music.

Student Life

When perspective students tour Juniata College for the first time, they ask the same questions. How much does it cost to go here? Are the classes hard? And what is student life like?

We all know that student life at J.C. took a different twist in 1988-89 — a sobering twist — no more kegs and no more “furnished” drinks. But with some shifting and planning, life marched onward in Huntingdon.

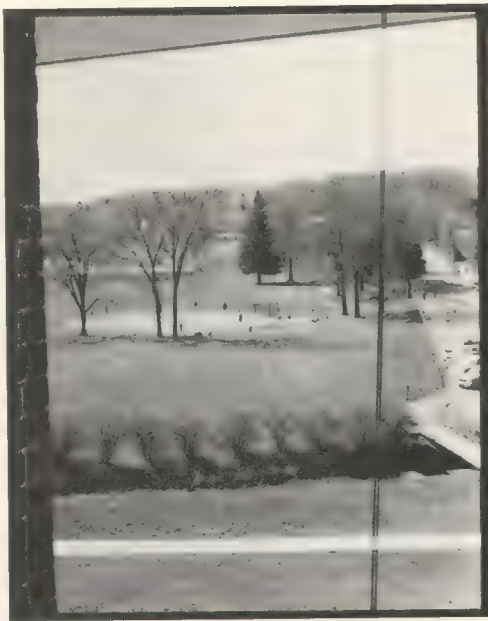

One of the first aspects of student life that I tell perspective students on tour about is that Juniata's atmosphere is just simply personal and friendly. Sooner or later we all get caught up in the “Hey, how's it goin'?” routine. We meet as awkward, unknown freshmen and stumble into each other — finding good close friends along the way.

Moving into the residence hall proves to be a challenging adventure. The rooms are inevitably too small and the people are oh so strange, but sooner or later, we fall into a routine and work together through a crazy year. Hall-mates held surprise R.A. door decoration contests and theme parties. Some people visited haunted caverns, covered doors with Presidential propaganda, and others played powder-puff football. A few went camping and others just ate pizza. Students even ventured out to learn more about the area beyond JC to visit the hot tubs and even the roller rink this year.

I suppose our view of student life and all that it encompasses has changed drastically from when we were perspectives, but no one can put a value or a price on the times we had.

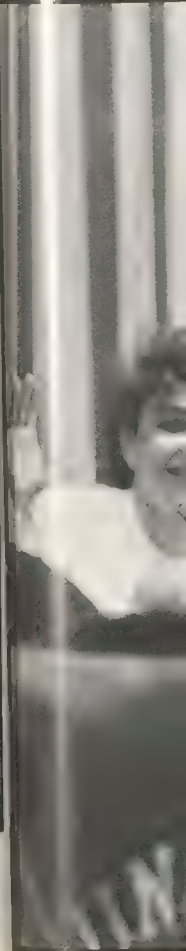

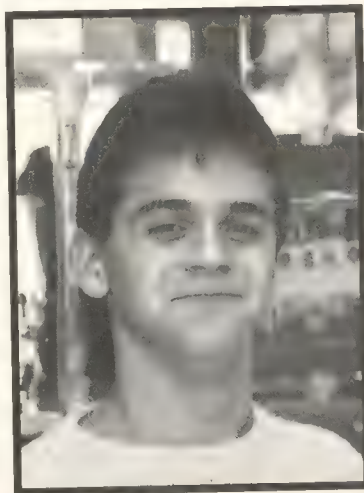

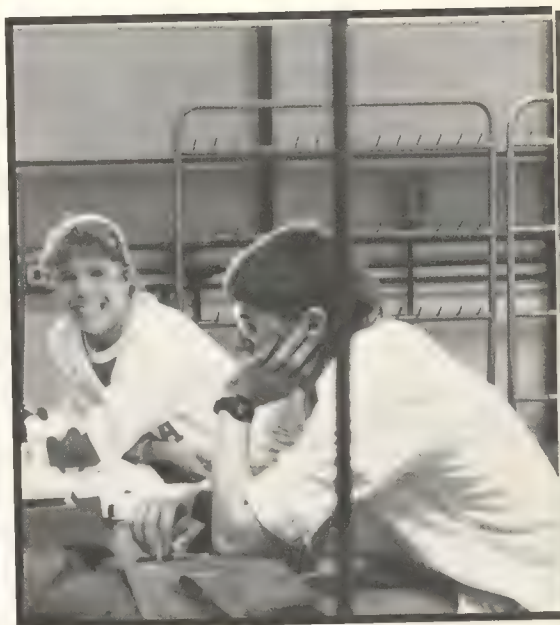

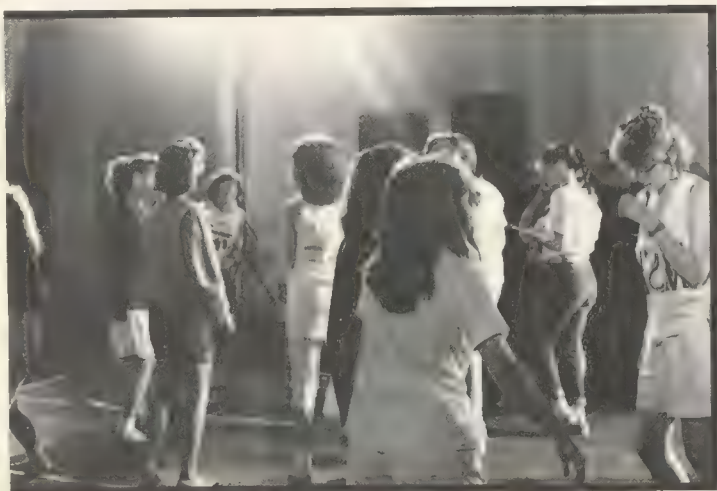

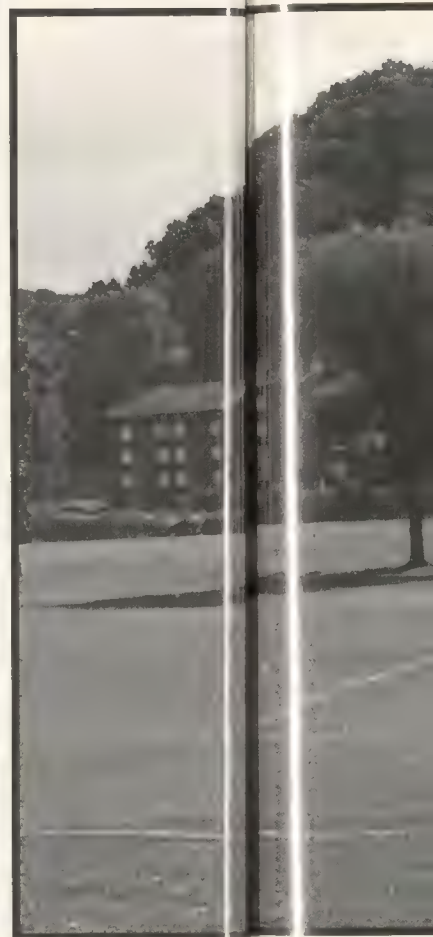

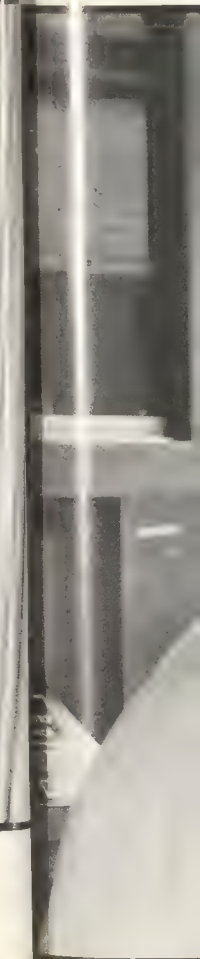

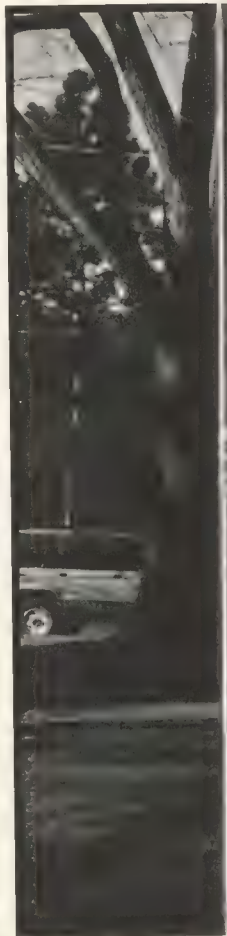

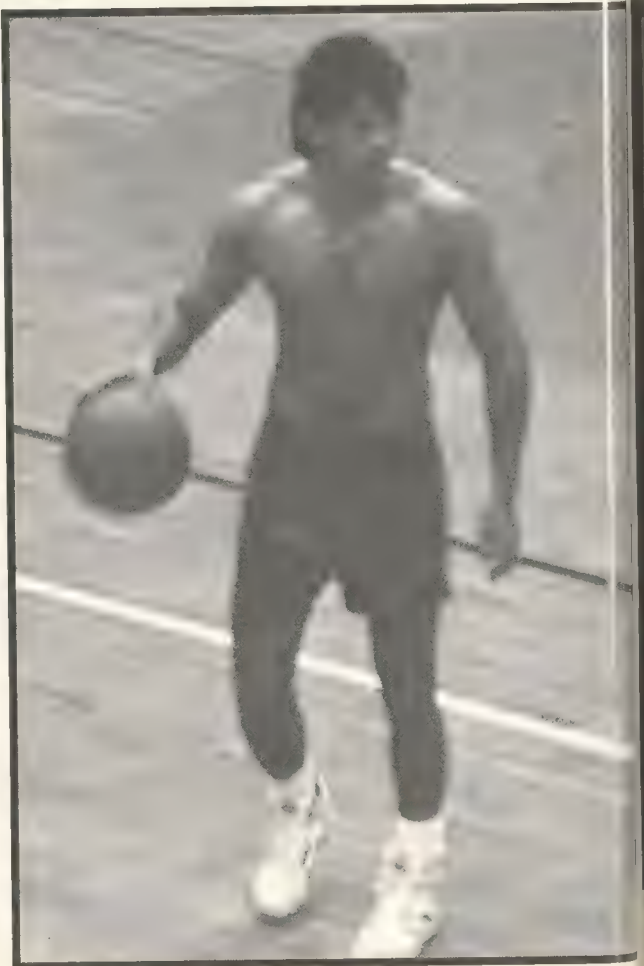

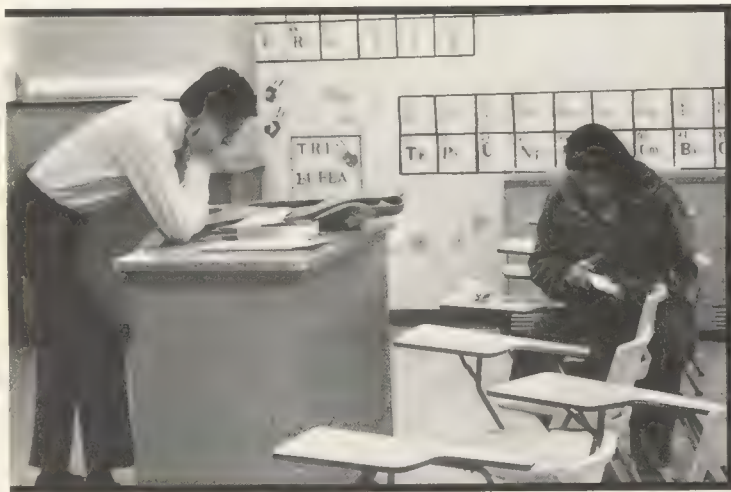

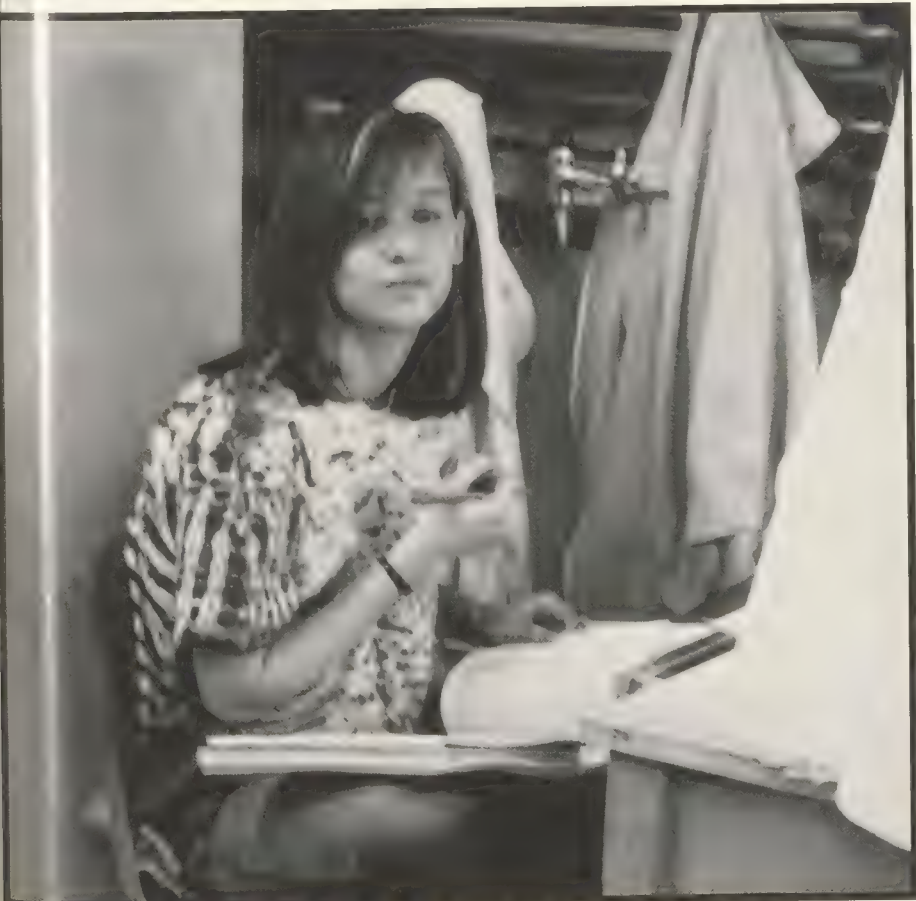

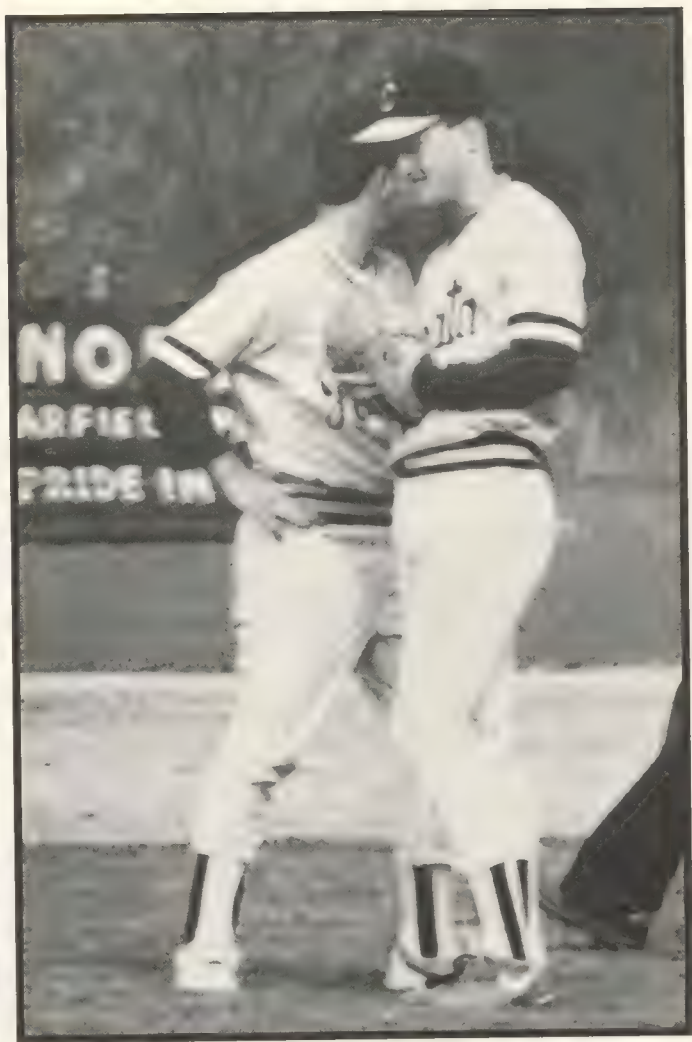

Clubs and Organizations

I sit, staring at the worn carpet and worrying about the files of schoolwork that must somehow be completed before Friday morning, eight a.m. and wondering how it could possibly be nine p.m. Thursday night already. I drum a quick reggae beat on my knee. I never should have come to this Kvasir meeting without finishing my work first. I snap back to reality when someone asks me what I think of the poem we are considering for publication. Creativity on demand. I relax and allow myself to be swept away by the discussion and this small circle of talent and intensity.

Perhaps the greatest attraction between Juniata's students and its clubs is that clubs are the best way to meet interesting people and are thus an excellent means of learning through those new relationships and through working in a specific interest area. Juniata's chartered clubs encompass a kaleidoscope of interests from religion, politics, and academics to music, communications, social life, and sports. Groups such as Student Government, Campus Ministry Board, and Centerboard are well known on campus for their services, projects, and events, but there are other smaller groups which deserve as much respect, such as the Human Concerns Committee, Women's Action Committee, Peer Advising, Judo Club, and CASE, although they remain hidden in the fabric of Juniata life. Even smaller than these are the few unchartered clubs that are founded by those wishing to broaden the scope of the Juniata community further, specifically, the Brethren Student Fellowship and the Writer's Group.

I look around at my friends and I wonder what Juniata would mean to me if it weren't for Kvasir.

Media

The Alfarata Staff although understaffed was able to produce, once again, a quality product. The production of the yearbook which is completely computerized is able to bring the college yearbook into the modern media age. The staff consisted of: Todd Miller, Editor; Kirk Altmanshoffer, Business Manager; Darrelle Lombardi, Karen Thompson, and the supporting staff.

The Juniatian is the school newspaper printed for the students. It keeps them up to date on recent campus issues and some world issues. Most of the articles published are written by the students of staff. The paper also features weekly columns, some of which are written by staff members of the college.

WKVR-FM is one of Juniata's largest and most active campus organization. The station operates daily from 7am-2am and features a rock/top 40 format. Jazz, Contemporary Christian, Oldies, Reggae, and Alternative music can be heard at various times throughout the week.

Centerboard and J.C. Outreach

Campus Ministry Board

The Campus Ministry Board, a non-denominational board of 15 students, and The Campus Ministry Staff continued to touch many facets of Juniata campus life. Our involvement in campus life took on a varied collection of activities. The year began with an All-campus picnic on Round-Top, which was a time for freshmen and others to build and renew friendships. Throughout the year countless activities were sponsored by CMB: Coffeehouses, Fellowship Dinners, speakers, and the meal for CROP. Weekly activities provided a consistent time for worship and community building. The focus of the weekly time was (and is) worship on Sunday evenings with both a Protestant and Catholic service. Weekly Bible-Studies and daily prayer meetings continued the nurturing for the community of God.

JIF

Juniata Instructors of the Future (JIF) is an organization which allows education majors to become familiar with the field of education. We make student aware of the requirements for teacher certification and job opportunities available.

International Club

The International Club is dedicated to promoting global awareness within the Juniata community. During the Fall semester the club sponsored the Exploratory Programs, at which a specific Country was the topic of discussion. Foreign exchange students from particular countries as well as Juniata College students who had been abroad, participated in the meetings, discussing the countries with interested students. Since this is a college, dedicated to instilling knowledge and wisdom in America's future generations, the International Club initiated a Foreign Language Tutorial Service for Spanish, French, and German, in the hopes that students would be encouraged to pursue the study of foreign languages.

Residential Life

The Residential Life Committee consists of the Vice President of each residence hall and members of student government. The committee provides various activities for students and works to improve living conditions. This year the Residential Life Committee organized a sheet volleyball tournament to benefit Easter Seals.

Sports

Sports play a major role in the lives of many of Juniata's students. The 1988-1989 season was off to a great start with fall sports. As usual, the women's volleyball team was quite successful, coming in third in the nation after losing a tough match in San Diego, California against the first ranked team from the University of California San Diego. The field hockey team also finished an impressive third in the MAC's. Despite some last minute losses and some injuries, the football team had a generally successful season in the new Knox Stadium. Other teams spent the season rebuilding and refining, often scoring impressive victories and sometimes just narrowly losing along the way.

Continuing in Juniata's reputation of winning in sports also comes the tradition of sportsmanship. Behind the many victories is the dedication of the trainers, managers, coaches, and athletes. The athletes consistently push themselves to their limits. However, despite the time, energy, and effort that is put into each sport, there is also the fun involved. Playing a sport gives the satisfaction of being an important part of a team, whether it be in performance on the field, or in keeping up morale.

With the support of students, faculty, parents, as well as other fans, Juniata sports teams have found their place in continuing a winning tradition, which consists of not only skill but also of sportsmanship.

The Juniata women's volleyball team once again found itself among the best of the NCAA national scene with its fourth consecutive trip to the FINAL FOUR. An outstanding third place finish in the national tournament capped a 43-7 season for the Indians. Juniata continued to dominate the MAC with an eighth consecutive conference championship this fall. Another team highlight was a first place finish in the Juniata Coca Cola Classic. Individual honors were bestowed upon Senior Jackie Rebert (All American, All-East, All-Conference) and Juniors Melinda Selby, Rhonda Bygall, and Kris Witchey (All-East, and All-Conference). Juniata's 1988 team captain was Dana Worthington.

Soccer

The 1988 Juniata Soccer team suffered a disappointing and frustrating 2-11-3 season. This season marked the last year of Klaus Jaeger as head coach. He retired after 9 seasons as head coach.

Individual honors went to Steve Grater who became Juniata's all-time goal scorer and to sophomore Pat Temple who was selected team MVP.

The men's basketball team had another very successful season, finishing 16-10 and making the MAC playoffs. Seniors Joe DeBlase, Mike Antenucci, Duane Dise and Les Squair completed their careers as four young men who had a lot to do with putting Juniata basketball on the map again. Sophomore Jay Nicholson was selected All-MAC and All-District. With many players returning, we are confident about the future of our program. We thank all the players for their hard work and dedication. Also, thanks to the cheerleaders and fans for their great support.

With 7 returning letter winners and the addition of Juliette Delattre an exchange student from Lille and freshmen Michelle Frye the team had the best record in the history of women's tennis at Juniata College. It was both the best winning percentage and the most wins in a season. Four seniors participated in this outstanding season: Captain Lynda Cass, Alison Frutchee, Lara Mann, and Georgia Stanaitis. Juniors Amy Buckbee, Julia Thaler, and Susan London were also prominent members of the team. Amy and Julie were 8-1 in doubles competition this year after being 9-1 last year as a team. Michelle had the best individual singles record at 9-1, which combined with the addition of Juliette as the number one position player with her 6-4 record was the spark that allowed the team to have their outstanding season.

International and National News

It became an international effort of good will. Russians and American rescuers cut through the ice in Alaska to save two California gray whales. The whales were trapped in the ice for more than three weeks. News media from around the world converged on the tiny village of Barrow, Alaska, to cover the successful rescue.

The shuttle Discovery blasted into orbit in September, the first space flight since the shuttle Challenger mission ended tragically 73 seconds after liftoff on Jan. 28, 1988. The Discovery ended its successful four day, 1.6 million mile mission with a triumphant landing at Edwards Air Force Base in California.

The World Series belonged to the Los Angeles Dodgers. The Dodgers captured their sixth World Series title in October with a 5-2 victory over the Oakland A's in the fifth game of the series.

Vice President George Bush, after serving for eight years in the Ronald Reagan administration, got the expected nod at the Republican National Convention in New Orleans in the summer of 1988. His choice for running mate was unexpected — Sen. Dan Quayle of Indiana. The public opinion polls showed that the inexperienced 41 year-old senator was not a popular choice.

Gretchen Elizabeth Carlson erupted in tears as her name was announced as Miss America 1989. The 22 year-old Miss Minnesota, who planned to be a Harvard-trained lawyer, became the first classical violinist to win the Miss America crown.

The stars of the 1988 Summer Olympics, clockwise from top: diver Greg Louganis won 2 gold medals; track and field star Carl Lewis won 2 gold (including 1 after Canadian Ben Johnson was disqualified) and 1 silver; Florence Griffith Joyner won 3 gold and 1 silver; and swimmer Matt Biondi celebrated with 5 gold, 1 silver, and 1 bronze.

Amid tears and grief, thousands of people who had died of AIDS were memorialized in October in ceremonies centered on a huge quilt that was made from friends and family members of the victims. Each of the panels measured three feet by six feet and all 50 states and a dozen foreign countries were represented in the 375,000 square foot quilt.

Yolanda King, the daughter of the great Martin Luther King, Jr., visited the Juniata campus last Tuesday to deliver a message of non-violence and hope for a peaceful reversal of our nation's current priorities; taking care of our poor and homeless and funding education before increasing defense spending.

Using the poetry of Langston Hughes and quoting great black leaders such as Malcolm X and her father, King, several times won applause from the predominantly white crowd which filled Oller Hall to capacity.

King said that by non-violence, she "did not mean smiling and saying 'hi' when you're angry inside." "Organize against that civil evil," said King.

"Put your dollars where your heart is," pleaded King. "When a country spends more than ten times as much to kill and destroy life than to educate their young, then that country is toying with destruction."

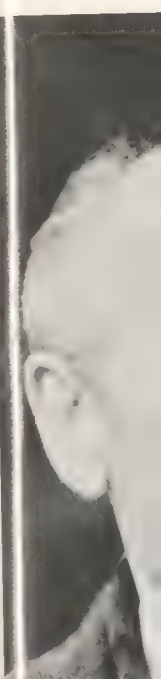

The thrust of King's message described the work of the Martin Luther King, Jr. Foundation, which works to develop programs that instill the theory of non-violence. "By the turn of the century," pledges King, "there will be an army of non-violent soldiers, soldiers who will utilize non-violence as a way of life."

Seniors

All things end, so my friends, we too shall be parting.

Moments shared slowly drift into memories.

But with time on our side, one day
we'll be together,
Until then, we must say goodbye.

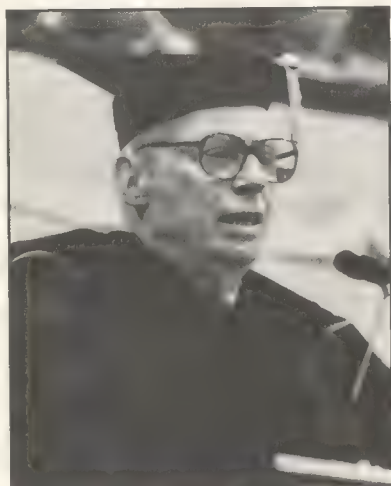

Thank you for the happiness
we've shared along the way.

May it be a constant friend
each hour every day.

May the songs we sang together live within our minds.

Sweet memories of joy and love, untouched by age or time.

Closing

*T*he closing of any book is an anti-climax. A postscript to the real action. The closing of this school year is the same. The real significance of the year is over. Graduation is just a symbol of the achievements of a four-year endeavor.

Other school years will follow, just as other graduates will receive their diploma from Juniata College. But this year is not just another page to a book. It is a significant part, without which JC would not be complete. For those of us who are saying our last goodbyes to the campus, exchanging tearful hugs with our friends and making promises to come back soon, things will never be the same.

Now it is time for other students to make their mark on the college. Ours is finished. The subtle difference we have made can never be changed, and it will never fade. Adieu.
